Tips from the Line

When using tall
equipment like tractors,
cranes, or boom lifts,
be cautious of overhead
power lines. Contact with power lines can be fatal, so it's crucial to be vigilant and have a spotter to ensure safe
clearance.

Message from the Board of Directors

Battle River Power Cooperative (BRPC) has made the difficult decision to leave the Alberta Federation of REAs (AFREA), effective January 2025. We made this choice after thinking deeply about how best to serve our members and help our industry move forward.

We honour the rich history of rural electrification associations in Alberta. Since the 1940s, dedicated farmers and community members have come together to build the power lines and infrastructure that brought electricity to rural Alberta. Their hard work and vision laid the foundation for the services we all rely on today. We are grateful for AFREA's past efforts in supporting these associations and the invaluable contributions of the board members who have kept this legacy alive.

Our decision aims to spark positive change. We want to be a catalyst for new ideas and actions that address the challenges facing REAs today. We believe it's time to think differently and find fresh solutions to help all REAs thrive.

BRPC is committed to cooperative values and extends a friendly hand to smaller REAs, understanding the difficulties they face. We encourage all REAs to actively tackle their own challenges and consider new approaches beyond what has been done before.

We see a future where BRPC plays a leading role in advancing rural electrification in Alberta. We want to work closely with our members, other REAs, and the government to ensure that rural communities continue to receive reliable and affordable electricity. Our goal is to foster growth, innovation, and resilience in our industry.

In light of our departure, we invite the boards of any REAs across Alberta to talk with us about our decision and the opportunities it brings. BRPC is eager to explore ways we can collaborate and offer support to ensure the ongoing success of rural electrification in the province. We remain open to rejoining an organization with a similar purpose in the future, if it aligns with our goals for effective leadership and positive change.
